AREW Presents Founders' Award to ACC's Medaglia

AREW presented its Founders' Award to Michele Medaglia, president and CEO, ACC Construction Corp., at its annual Members Only Luncheon. Medaglia was selected for "outstanding support of AREW's work and mission through consistent contributions of time, effort and expertise" by AREW's outgoing president, Amy Applebaum, vice president, JPMorgan Chase.

A long time member of AREW, Medaglia was AREW's 2004-05 president. She recently served as sponsorship co-chair for the AREW Charitable Fund's breakfast honoring Bruce Mosler, president and CEO, Cushman and Wakefield, as AREW's first Man of the Year. The breakfast raised a record amount to benefit Women In Need Inc.

ACC Construction is the leading Women's Business Enterprise general contracting and construction management firm in the greater New York metropolitan area, with service lines ranging from interior fit-outs to core-and-shell construction.

A long-time advocate for women in the construction and real estate industries, Medaglia's dedication to professional communities and critical social causes has elicited awards from such other prominent organizations as the Trey Whitfield Foundation, National Organization of Women and Americans of Italian Heritage. —ABY
